

A Model Alberta Town

Which will be Supported by the Best Sugar Industry.

Very few people have any idea of the amount of work being done in southern Alberta, and its remarkable prospects for the future. The Canadian North West Irrigation company, in which one of the leading agrarians in the world, is succeeding in turning the whole of southern Alberta into a busy hub of industry.

The new town of Raymond, near Lethbridge, was laid out in lots that fall on a very excellent plan, with good, wide streets, set in the usual square style, but with a wide averaging diagonally from each corner into the center or hub. The present office is laid out in over a mile square, but the reserve for the town amounts to two-hundred square, or four sections.

The center of the town is set apart for business purposes, the lots being 100 feet wide and 200 feet long. Outside of this center, with the exception of portions reserved for church and park purposes, all the lots are one acre in size, and are laid out in making one block, this is called the residential portion, and is rapidly filling up, some of the houses having already been built, besides a large store, drug, and a hotel of the same dimensions, in the center of the block.

An excellent method is adopted in regard to the disposal of lots in the residential portion, namely, a very liberal rebate to purchasers inducing moderate sized dwellings, up to $1000 in a year. This stimulates to a great extent lots being held for a year or two.

The principal industry of Raymond is to be a sugar factory, for which is chosen and building lands have been set out, there are also about three acres, and the anticipated cost when started is $500,000. Jesse Kellogg, the organizer and founder of Raymond, with its accompanying beet sugar industry, has already this fall, allowed over 200 acres to be planted, and next fall for the cultivation of sugar beets.

A large portion of this is to be sold in parcels of ten acres only, the settlers for the tract being not only, but the surrounding district, and the whole of the North West Irrigation company's area, is divided into forty and eighty acre allotments where the settler can make his home.

Mr. Austin, the sugar expert from Utah, who has twice visited Raymond, and last month he decided as to the site and size of the factory, has kindly furnished the following details in regard to the industry, of which the following are extracts:

The daily consumption of beets for each 100 acres, 400 tons, or 1000 tons for 100 days. This is considered an average campaign for a sugar factory.

NEW GRADES OF ALBERTA OATS

At a recent meeting of the grain standards board the matter of fixing new grades of oats was taken up. Considerable discussion took place in regard to the question of new oats which it had been found were coming in from the Edmonton district.

A motion was brought up to pass a resolution putting forward oats of a superior grade. It was, however, claimed by some of the members that it was an intrusion to do this, as it would attach a stigma to the oats that was unwarrantable as the oats were of fine quality for a very purpose with the exception of a few inferior.

The motion was, however, carried, and the following resolution was drafted and passed to the satisfaction of all:

"Owing to the difference in the general character of oats grown in the North West of Alberta, it is hereby resolved that each one shall be graded as follows:

LEAP INTO THE FRASER

Vancouver, Dec. 18.—Three hundred men in the Fraser River canyon were taken by the rushing waters of a freight train, four of the men were killed, and the rest were injured.

The wreck was caused by a rockslide from the mountain side, and the train was in charge of Conductor Meritt.

Another freight train had passed the same point less than three hours previously, and the watchman, who stood the boat, had covered it twice during the night, the last time less than an hour before the accident.

Bandall was one of the most trusted engineers on the line.

How the War Goes on.

Several British Victories During the Past Week. Botha Wounded.

London, Dec. 11.—(Ford cable)—Statement with some show of confidence that the government will shortly make drastic changes in reference to the working of the concentration camps in South Africa. Rumors are actually current to the effect that the camps will be abolished, but at neither the colonial nor the war office is there any confirmation of it.

On the contrary, the colonial office has charge of the camps, has been making steps to strengthen the medical staff in attendance upon the refugees. Within the last few days it has been reported that the period of engagement being 12 by an English firm and conveyed to the Boers in British ships.

This action on the part of the authorities does not lead forth the view that the camps are to be abandoned, but that they are to be improved, and that the Boers are to be treated with more humanity.

Monument for Davin.

A Movement on Foot in Ottawa to Perpetuate His Memory.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—H. J. Morgan has secured the "judicious" cooperation of a large number of influential friends as a committee to receive subscriptions to erect a monument to the late N. P. Davin, a very considerable sum has already been promised, and to Mr. Morgan's hands there need not be any doubt that the monument will be in every way worthy of the memory of the much lamented Mr. Davin.

A HEAVY SENTENCE

The Sergeant by the Court of Queen's Bench this morning Sir Justice Hall sentenced Amable Davin to imprisonment for life in the penitentiary.

One night in October last he shot three times and wounded Mrs. Butcher, the keeper of a small shop at St. Lawrence street but she recovered and appeared against him at the trial. Davin was an Italian immigrant who had been imprisoned for a short time in the penitentiary for a shooting and shot her after threatening to tell her husband.

George Blumhardt, who caused the death of a cat named "Dorian" in a street car, was sentenced to two months in prison.

A Human Brute.

Carl Yensen gets Over Six Years and the Cat.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Yesterday morning the alleged sitting of the Supreme Court was opened at the court house here by Mr. Justice McIntyre, who came up from Prince Albert to relieve Mr. Justice Scott—the latter having to hold court at Edmonton.

The first case to be called was that of Rex v. Mike Glavin, who was committed for trial from (Lanark) on two charges of theft. The first charge was that he had stolen a coat or shirt of the value of $100, and the second charge was that he had stolen a pair of gloves, the property of Allen Campbell.

Henry Schofield deposed that he was a merchant at Bowden and was acquainted with the accused. In the early part of October he went to Allen Campbell's store at Bowden and there saw a box which he had shipped to Leduc ten days previously to Glavin. The box was opened and he identified certain articles therein as belonging to himself and Campbell. The articles which he claimed he had never sold or given to anyone. Mr. Schofield, on cross examination said his wife assisted him in the store and she might have sold some of the articles to anyone; this was highly improbable.

Allen Campbell deposed that having missed orders from his store at Bowden he tried to trace them, knowing that accused had shipped a box to Leduc he informed the police and the box was returned to Bowden. It was opened in the witness' presence in the presence of the section foreman and in its contents the articles set out in the indictment which witness claimed as his property. Accused once again denied that he had bought things from him but witness had not said the particular articles in question. On cross examination Mr. Campbell said that his wife, called Jane, was in the store and he also had a clerk who was employed intermittently. He said that he had not sold the articles to anyone, although it was possible for them to have done so. It would be against witness' orders if they had because the articles were old pieces from several sales and he did not allow the sale to be cut up in that manner. Neither his wife nor the clerk were there.

This completed the evidence in the Campbell charge. The second indictment against accused was that he had in the same date stole three pairs of overalls and two shirts, the property of Henry Schofield. The evidence in this charge was identical with the first, already given and for the purposes of the trial it was accepted without the necessity of repeating it.

On behalf of accused it was urged that the crown had to prove that he sold the property to a clerk and that he had not received it. This had failed to do so, inasmuch as it was admitted that Schofield's wife and Campbell's wife and clerk might have sold the articles in question to anyone. The judge said that he was saying these persons should have been called and that the evidence to be produced. James Scott, section foreman, deposed that the items, brought by Scott and H. W. H. Scott were a pair of trousers.

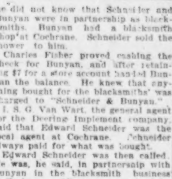

Rex v. Butcher.

James Butcher was taken yesterday to the 22nd day but having received one $1000 fine and a $1000 fine he got on terms requiring him to be in court for said fine, the judge to the effect that he was not to be imprisoned the proceeds of his own money.
